Humor Author Will Share Moving and Homeownership Hilarity on The Housing Hour Radio

Diane Laney Fitzpatrick, humorist, blogger and author, will be a guest on The Housing Hour, a radio show devoted to the housing industry.

Fitzpatrick will talk about her book, Home Sweet Homes: How Bundt Cakes, Bubble Wrap, and My Accent Helped Me Survive Nine Moves, a hilarious account of her cross-country moves with her family.

The show will air at 8 a.m. EST, Jan. 11, 2014, on <http://www.thehousinghour.com/> and will be available on The Housing Hour's website and social media sites for an extended period.

Home Sweet Homes is part humorous memoir and part how-to, with tongue-in-cheek advice from someone who's been there - everywhere - and done that. From choosing and buying a house to selling a house, from dealing with moving companies to the joys of fixer-upper home ownership, Fitzpatrick has stories that everyone who's moved can relate to.

The Housing Hour, hosted by Kevin Rhea and Mark Griffith, provides listeners with entertaining and informative news and views about the housing industry. More information on The Housing Hour can be found at <http://www.thehousinghour.com>. Learn more about Home Sweet Homes at www.DianeLaneyFitzpatrick.com or www.HomeSweetHomesBook.com.
